CETA aid seekers file bids

PLEASANTON — The Human Services Commission will be cast in a new role tomorrow — screener of 20 applications for CETA funds for programs that will operate primarily in the Valley.

The commission will meet at 8 p.m. in the City Council Chambers.

The commission's staff — Dianne McKenna with the assistance of Human Services Department head Bob Caporusso — will have recommendations on all but three of the applications. Those three involve requests from the city and the staff feels it would be a conflict of interest to make recommendations on them.

CETA stands for Comprehensive Employment and Training Act. Its intention is to create jobs for qualified people in programs that will do people some good. It's looked on as a local - control successor to the old Works Progress Administration of the 1930's.

Local people who are applying for CETA funds for a five month period will each be given three minutes tomorrow night to tell the Human Services Commission why they should be recommended for funding.

Pleasanton's share of the funding will be $60,000; that comes from federal tax money, not local taxes.

The funding period would run from April 15 to Sept. 30. The commission has been assigned the task of screening the applications because it has an overview of the social service needs in the community.

Close vote race forecast Tuesday

PLEASANTON — The closest school board election in the Valley may take place in this community Tuesday.

Six candidates are competing for three positions to be open on the board. Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Election guessperts predict that a relative handful of votes could separate the first three vote-getters with the same small number separating third and fourth place.

Only one incumbent, Al Dutchover, is in the race. Karen Finn decided in December not to seek another four-year term.

Dutchover is the current board gavel-wielder. He is getting strong competition from five first-time school board candidates, Nancy Hawtrey, James Griffen, Ronald Ott, Dennis Reidy and Earnestine Schneider.

Reidy was appointed to the board five months ago to replace Dr. Guy Clark, who moved to Albuquerque, New Mexico. Reidy, however, cannot be listed on the ballot as an incumbent.

Ott, at 32, is the youngest of the group. He is employed at Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

Griffen, a self-styled "board watcher," is employed with a manufacturing company in engineering. He is 42 and a resident of Pleasanton the past three years.

Mrs. Hawtrey, 40, formerly taught at the college level in the Chicago area for several years. She has been involved in district schools as a volunteer instructor of physical education, member of the parent - teacher advisory committee and playground development committee.

Mrs. Schneider, 46, is a graduate of San Francisco State with a major in education and has taught. She also has 12 years experience as recreation director involving teen and elementary programs.

Reidy, 39, and his wife have four children and have lived in the district for almost 10 years. He is self-employed as a realtor associate.

Dutchover is in the city planning department. He has served on the board for six years.

The Pleasanton district is one of three in the Valley still trying to resolve contracts for both certificated and classified personnel.

As a result, a majority of the questions directed to candidates have concerned salary and binding arbitration.

Most candidates, and not just in the Pleasanton district, are unwilling to say they would support any more than an advisory form of binding arbitration.

This campaign, perhaps more than any previous school board election, has stirred great interest and activity amongst teachers.

Ott is known to have considerable support amongst teachers. However, none of the various teacher organizations have elected to formally endorse any candidates.

The three successful candidates will be sworn in next month prior to reorganization of the board. They will join Betty Nostrand and Joe Schwab.

Great America

Official show band picks Valley youth

LIVERMORE — Brian Buckner of Livermore and his trumpet will be commuting to Santa Clara soon, now that he has been accepted for the show band of Great America amusement park.

Brian, 21, was one of 10 trumpeters selected for the various musical groups at the park. Only three were chosen for the show band.

Brian has played that horn since fifth grade and has been in the Granada High School jazz band.

The young musician toured the park yesterday during a special orientation day for new employes. His show dates run from March 26 to late September.

He has a quiet sense of excitement, looking forward to the stage performances where specially written music will highlight the shows. He expects to be in four or five shows a day.

Teens die following Foothill collision

PLEASANTON — Two young people died and two others are reported in serious condition at Valley Memorial Hospital, Livermore, following a tragic single car collision Friday night on Foothill Road.

According to the investigating California Highway Patrol, the station wagon was northbound on Foothill at a high rate of speed when the driver apparently lost control north of Bernal Avenue and the vehicle slammed into a tree.

Dublin chamber calls cityhood forum

DUBLIN — People interested in Dublin incorporation are invited by the Dublin Chamber of Commerce to air their views March 21, 7:30 p.m. in the main room at Shannon Community Center.

According to chamber vice president Dave Burton, the purpose of the meeting will be to establish the facts of what incorporation means in terms of reduced taxes, better police services and more local control over planning, zoning, budget and growth.

Burton, a Rotarian, is Coordinator of the proposed incorporation movement.

Chamber directors have stated the chamber as a body is neither pro or con on the incorporation issue. Their aim is to gather facts and make them available to the public.

Burton said five operating committees will be set up during the March 21 session. Their duties will be to study the best way to organize various phases of the proposed town. Committee chairman will form the executive committee that will be responsible for coordinating the various committee's activities.

Committee number one will be Political. It will determine political structure, administration, manpower needed and will investigate legal requirements necessary to becoming incorporated.

Number two will be Planning. That committee will determine boundaries of the proposed incorporated area, set up standards and procedures for zoning, planning, business development and propose the best facilities for a town center.

Number three is Contract Services. During initial stages of the proposed incorporation, Burton said it would be advisable to contract all community services requiring technically trained manpower and specialized equipment.

Committee number three would also negotiate with agencies that are providing police services, building inspection, animal control, streets and lighting, plus the Valley Community Services District's (VCSD) important services such as fire protection, water, sewage and parks.

Number four is Budget and Finances. This committee will be responsible for establishing what revenues and income can be expected from various taxing agencies, federal and state subventions and revenue sharing. They will make a proposed budget for next year based on "input" from other committees.

Number five is Election Planning and Promotion. Planning will be required for a possible election in November, 1977. This committee will be setting up the dates, necessary procedures, forms and facilities needed, obtaining funding to finance the campaign and organize people to help with election proceedings. Burton said this could involve a speaker's bureau, literature, posters and slogans.

Meat sale fraud charged

The Blue Star Meat Co., which sells meats door-to-door in Contra Costa County, has been slapped with a civil fraud suit by three district attorneys.

District attorneys in San Francisco, Santa Clara and Monterey counties allege that the door-to-door meat salesmen operating in those counties were fraudulently telling customers that they had been delivering meat to restaurants and had steaks left over.

Robert Blasier, Contra Costa deputy district attorney, said that so far there have been no valid complaints here regarding the meat company.

The three-county suit alleges that most of the deliverymen tried to sell meat to office workers and "would often pretend that they had to get rid of meat which was not needed by local restaurants."

"Purchasers would often find that what was represented as 'filet mignon' was almost inedible and would cost them about twice the supermarket price," said David Moon, a San Francisco deputy district attorney.

SR builders' policy eyed

San Ramon Valley Unified School Diatrict board members will hold an election eve pow-wow Monday, but with a developers policy firm on their minds.

The controversial and crucial document will feature a moderate-length agenda at 7:30 p.m. at tne Education Center, 699 Old Orchard Dr.

The board is slated to take action on plans for summer school. a career education grant proposal, a plan for the lease Purchase election, and the proposed site for a cantinuation high school.

Trustees will also hear a report from the Neil Armstrong School reconstruction committee, water conservation, the Committee on Junk Food, and progress reports from the district's fine arts and social studies committees.

PG&E seeks rate hike

Saying that drought and natural gas prices are boosting costs, a $152.1 million rate hike was requested last week by Pacific Gas & Electric Co.

If granted by the Public Utilities Commission, the increase would hike the typical residential monthly bill by $1.54 for 500 kilowatt hours and 58 cents for 100 therms of natural gas.

Rates for residential lifeline use would be unaffected.

Parking unit formed

Bob Bruns, president of the Livermore Chamber of Commerce, Friday announced formation of a merchants' parking lot committee to work with city officials for a solution to the lease expiration of a parking lot between First Street and the court house.

Names to the committee are Bob Rumberger, Pat Brown, Carl Williams and Dom Saccullo.

No meeting date with the city has been set.

CCC cautions on rabies

On Friday, Feb. 25, 1977 a grey fox from the hills of Pinole in Contra Costa County was confirmed positive for rabies by the County Health Department Laboratory.

Contra Costa County is classed as an endemic area for rabies within the wild life population. That means the disease is always present and therefore a potential threat to pets, domestic animals and people in the county.

The Health Department and Animal Control Center warn citizens to never touch or handle a strange acting sick or dead wild animal in Contra Costa County or anywhere. They state that sometimes mere contact with a rabid animal raises the question of whether or not exposure has taken place.

The health officials point out that a rabid animal's saliva is teeming with rabies virus. If this gets into a cut, scratch or any open wound, it could have the same effect as a bite.

Measle warning issued

For the second time in four weeks, the Contra Costa County Health Department has issued a warning to parents on the dangers of red measles.

Dr. Orlyn Wood, county Health Officer, has reported an outbreak of Rubeola (red measles) in the county that seems to be moving from Rodeo, to San Pablo, Pinole and El Cerrito.

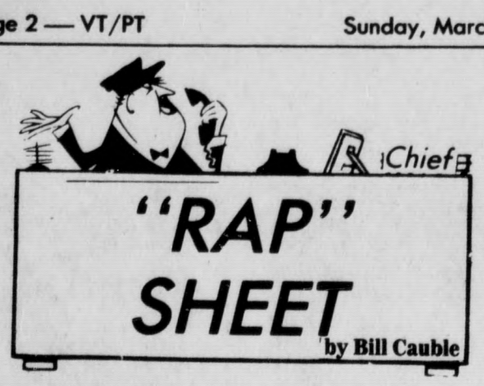
Forty cases have been reported to the Health Department since January of this year. Last year only three cases were reported in 12 months.

Carol Walton, Health Department nurse, said most of the children affected had been vaccinated before 1969. Some were vaccinated before they celebrated their first birthday.

In either case, Walton said, the immunity may no longer be there.

She explained that in the 1960's when the measles vaccine was first available, a killed vaccine wasused. This vaccine was much less effective than the one used today.

She added that youngsters who received vaccine prior to one year of age also may not be protected from the childhood disease.



Cash and checks taken from Granada Bowl

LIVERMORE — A bank bag containing $450 in cash and checks was taken from behind the counter of Granada Bowl at 1620 Railroad Avenue Tuesday while a clerk was temporarily kept busy, police reported.

A desk clerk said he had put register receipts into a bank bag, and put the money on a shelf behind the counter when a customer needed attention. When he returned a few minutes later, the bag was gone.

The green money bag, with "Livermore National Bank" printed on the side, was filled with $100 cash and $350 in checks. There are no suspects.

Search warrant leads to suspected cocaine

LIVERMORE — A ¼-gram of suspected cocaine and a small amount of marijuana were confiscated from a Ventura Street resident Wednesday after police executed a narcotics search warrant on the suspect's car.

Officer Dan Killeen's investigation led to issuance of the warrant, which was executed on the suspect on Airway Boulevard near Interstate 580 about 10:30 Wednesday morning.

Police found two small plastic envelopes in the suspect's wallet. One contaned a small amount of marijuana, the other a quantity of suspected cocaine. Preliminary chemical tests indicated the drug was cocaine.

Arrested fon suspicion of possessing a controlled substance was Joe Earl Chancy, 31, of 1086 Ventura St. He was issued a citation for possessing a small amount of marijuana.

Accident leads to beating

PLEASANTON — A San Leandro man involved in a minor traffic accident was hit and kicked by the other driver on Foothill Road late Thursday, police reported.

Jospeph Tanner Jr., 21, told police the accident occurred on Interstate 580 about 8 p.m. Thursday. Both cars pulled off onto Foothill Road to examine the damage. Instead, the other driver became angered and began beating Tanner.

He sustained minor injuries to his chest, nose and leg before the attacker was pulled off by a companion. The suspect has been traced to San Francisco and is sought for prosecution, police said.

Murray election rundown

Murray trustees' battle seen

A possible three-way battle for two seats on the Murray School District board was shaping up today, involving incumbent Linda Jeffery and first-time candidates Donald C. Biddle and Linda Cooley.

Also seeking election to the five-member board are David Foster and Harry Molz.

Mrs. Jeffery won a position via a special election a year ago to replace Joanne Bascom, who resigned and moved out of the district.

The other position is that of Dr. Ted Woy, current board president, who chose not to seek another term after 10 years on the board.

In a statement released Friday, Residents-In-Action, a Dublin-based group, said it was endorsing Biddle for election and no one else.

RIA spokeswoman Lenore Holmes urged voters to examine the comments and records of each of the candidates carefully before voting.

Biddle, who has conducted perhaps the most arduous campaign of any school board candidate in the Valley, is also known to have strong support amongst teachers in the Murray district.

Mrs. Cooley, a resident of the Val Vista section of Pleasanton, and Molz, a Dublin realtor, both were members of the Citizens Advisory Committee that recommended Dublin School for conversion to a junior high school. The board ultimately voted for Frederiksen.

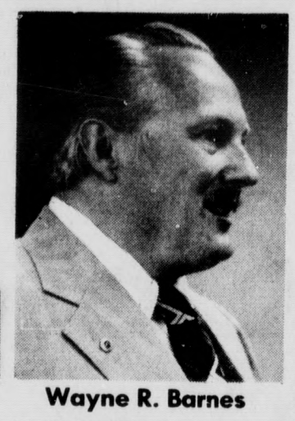
Both have been active in district affairs, but especially Mrs. Cooley, who has provided input at both the local school and district committee levels.

Foster is a resident of the Frederiksen School area but has kept his campaign broad-based and not directed specifically to the conversion of that school.

He will be available to talk with any residents of the district on the issues today at his home, 7163 Newcastle Lane, Dublin, according to a press release. He lists his phone number as 829-2794.

The two successful candidates Tuesday will join present members Ann Henderson, Pete Snyder and Bob Foster.

John J. Delaney



Wayne R. Barnes

Amador district residents to fill three board slots

Barring a possible backlash against incumbents, the makeup of the Amador Valley Joint High School District board is not expected to change much when voters go to the polls Tuesday.

Vying for three positions on the high school board, which administers to Dublin High, Amador Valley High, Foothill High, and Valley Continuation, are challengers Frank Damerval and Gene Hinton and incumbents Jack Delaney and Wayne Barnes.

Thus, at least one incumbent is assurred of another four year term.

Barnes is presently clerk of the board and the lone Dublin resident on the board.

Delaney is a veteran member of the high school board, which has been under fire from teachers in recent months over the key contract issues of salary and binding arbitration of grievances.

Hinton has conducted a low-key campaign, limiting his statements to candidates nights held at Amador Valley High and Harvest Park School. A resident of Dublin, Hinton was previously active in Murray School District affairs and twice ran for the board of that district.

Damerval became interested in district problems initially through his involvement in the Foothill High School Booster Club. This is his first attempt at running for elective office.

Candidates winning election Tuesday will be faced with a batch of fiscal problems, the primary one engendered by the nearly year-long hassle over wages.

A great majority of the electorate resides in Pleasanton but the problems have tended to transcend the Highway 580 "boundary."

Hinton and Damerval are, in effect, running for the position being vacated by Wally Decker, current board president who chose not to seek another term.

Reorganization of the board will come in April.

LAVWMA mulls pipeline costs

A wastewater disposal project can now be built without prior voter approval.

Directors of the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency (LAVWMA) adopted a resolution Thursday giving the joint powers agency authority to fund the local share of project costs, estimated at about $10 million.

The 4-2 vote, Pleasanton representatives Ken Mercer and Robert Philcox dissenting, still leaves open the possibility of a November revenue bond election measure. But if the election were to fail, LAVWMA could still raise local share costs through other means.

Pleasanton is withholding agreement on pay - as - you - go financing until a specific project is selected and actual cost figures are made known.

Pleasanton's position in the past has been that it would agree to no project unless a provision for extra industrial capacity for that city was given.

Livermore is now pushing hard to get things moving on the stalled project so a sewer hookup ban on its city will be removed. The state board that imposed the ban will meet Tuesday in Pleasanton City Council Chambers beginning at 9 a.m. to consider setting new deadlines for compliance. Livermore could be allowed 62 more sewer hookups for already - approved construction if certain deadlines are met.

Valley Community Services District and Livermore joined forces to vote a March 15 deadline for Pleasanton to make a decision on alternate funding.

Municipal court actions reported

LIVERMORE — A man charged with felony battery on a 15 year old Pleasanton girl has pleaded guilty in municipal court to a misdemeanor charge of disturbing the peace.

Howard Russell Davis, 20, of Pleasanton, was fined $125 by Judge Mark Eaton for causing a bloody nose to Thelma May Moroles.

The incident happened Aug. 31, in the Pleasanton 7-11 store where Davis is a clerk. He claimed the girl was loitering.

The girl's father, Juan Moroles, was later accused of firing shots into Davis' car. Moroles is awaiting trial in Alameda County Superior Court.

In other court action:

— A March 25 preliminary hearing was ordered for Norman Forgason, 39, accused of beating his wife Barbara to death in a Livermore motel Feb. 5.

Autopsy reports indicated at least four blows were dealt to the side of her head, one breaking a blood vessel.

— Kevin Bukowatz, 19, 405 Old Orchard Court, Danville, pleaded guilty to reduced misdemeanor charges of stealing from Albertson's Market in Dublin Jan. 18 and assaulting a clerk who tried to stop him in the parking lot.

Bukowatz was ordered to appear in court April 29 for sentencing.

— Michael A. Brady, 18, 7060 Honey Court, Dublin, was ordered to appear at a preliminary hearing Monday on charges he hit a man over the head with a metal bar and stole $450.

Richard Epps, assistant manager of Corwood Car Wash, 6973 Village Parkway, Dublin, told police Brady asked for a job, then hit him when Epps turned to do something. Epps received a two inch cut on his head.

Valley musician lands big job

"I auditioned three weeks ago, then they called me a week ago and asked me to come in for an interview," said the music major at Cal State Hayward. "I had been told that if they called you for an interview they've accepted you."

He considers himself fortunate, because Great America only hired back three of last year's trumpeters. He walked away from the audition with a pleased feeling.

His 3-4 hours daily practice paid off and he is looking forward to a musical teaching career. Even now he has nine students who range from fifth grade to freshman in high school.

Before he settles down to teaching, though, Brian wants to play in a touring band like the Woody Herman Band.

"That way I'll have the whole realm of where the kids want to go," he told The Times. "It's hard to direct students in their musical careers if you haven't been there — like a painter drawing a lake when he's never seen one before."

He was a student of Carl Leach at the Valley Music House in Livermore for four years. Leach once played with Stan Kenton.

Brian directs his own "practice band," sometimes called Buckners Big Band, which contains directors of other local school bands — such as Bernie Burke on Alto Sax (director of East Avenue School Band) and Dan Chambers on trumpet (director of Junction Avenue School).

Amador bargaining progresses?

An all-night bargaining session Friday failed to settle the year-long negotiation between Amador Valley Joint Union High School District management and teacher representatives.

The session broke up at 5:15 a.m. Saturday and adjourned to next Friday when the group will reconvene at 7 p.m. in district offices. A meeting of the teachers' representative counsel is to be held today.

According to Dave Woolworth, president of the Amador Valley Secondary Education Association, little progress was made Friday night. However, he said that four of the five Amador trustees attended the all-night session. Board members and the district's chief negotiator Keith Breon met in the face - to - face session with state mediator Mike West and members of the teachers' union, according to a press statement Saturday from district management. Contrary to Woolworth's assessment, the statement said "considerable progress" was made.

Science fair slated today

A science fair, featuring the work of students at St. Michael's School in Livermore, will be open to the public today from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Higher school standards is goal of Livermore hopeful

"I'm the voice in the wilderness."

Livermore school board candidate Barbara Stear says she has no campaign committee, no "machine" backing her and no interest group to which she'll owe her seat on the board.

But she does feel she speaks for the majority of Livermore parents when she calls for uniformity among the schools and higher standards for performance.

Barbara Stear

Barbara has been involved with education for the past 23 years. She began her career as a teacher in Oklahoma after graduating from the University of Tulsa.

After marrying Jackson Stear, an airlines pilot, she lived in various parts of the country. Working as a substitute teacher and raising four children (Carol, 21, and Suzanne, 19, are now at UC Davis; Bob, 13, and Jim, 10, attend Mendenhall and Sonoma Schools), she had a unique chance to compare educational systems.

The Stears settled in New Jersey for 10 years and here Barbara served in the Hanover Township school board. "They had an excellent school system," she remembers.

She currently serves on the Livermore district's Secondary Education Advisory Committee. working on high -school graduation requirements.

"You've got to have a firm grip on mastery," the candidate believes. She is appalled at reports that students graduate from high school still unable to read and do math. Others in Livermore, she says, can't get into the colleges of their choice because of poor preparation.

Dropping Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores, she says, are "something people ought to worry about."

Beginning in elementary school, Stear feels Livermore scores should be higher than they are compared with the national average. "With all the highly educated, intelligent people at places like the Lab, our scores should be in the 70's and 80's, not the 50's and 60's," she observes. "We need to strive for excellence."

Stear is not down on the schools for ignoring reading, writing and math — just for "not doing it efficiently."

Besides the "three R's," the concept of "basics" to Stear includes history, science, music and art — the latter eliminated from Livermore's elementary curriculum several years ago and never replaced.

Physical education is another subject "sadly lacking" in elementary schools here, notes the candidate. To find money for more teachers to offer those subjects, she suggests "paring down some administrative costs and directing the money into the schools." A careful analysis of costs would have to be made before deciding just which ones to cut, she suggests.

Barbara feels offering widely different types of education, from personalized to fundamental, is "incompatible with the neighborhood school concept" which states that every Livermore child should be within walking distance of a suitable school.

Since many parents drive their children across town to schools more to their liking, Barbara suggests making all elementary schools uniformly traditional and uniformly excellent.

"I don't favor open classrooms," she says flatly. "The teacher within the classroom is capable of offering alternatives and giving individual instruction. This is what they're trained for."

In New Jersey, Barbara served on a nine - member school board. She would like at least two more seats on Livermore's currently five - member board for broader representation of the community and better communication with the public.

"There's a definite lack of communication. They should hold at least one board meeting a month in the schools instead of always in the administration building.

"You've got to put the board where the people are."

Jumping for joy at news of the 1977 March of Dimes Valley Walkathon, are these members of the elementary school steering committee. The 20 mile hike will begin between 8 a.m. and 9 a.m. March 12 at the county fairgrounds in Pleasanton. Walkers of all ages are invited. Goal is 3,000 walkers and $30,000. Sponsor sheets which bring the contributions to the cause are available at McDonald's restaurants or by calling 836-2267.

Murray board mulls superintendent hunt

Murray School District trustees will receive a time-line report on consolidation of schools and an update on the search for a new superintendent at Monday night's meeting.

The school board will convene at 8 p.m. at Donlon School, 4150 Dorman Rd., Pleasanton.

An architect to work with the conversion of Frederiksen School to seventh - eighth grade use will be finalized and a contract agreed upon. Steve Wallace, a parent in the Frederiksen area, will also make a statement regarding the conversion.

Reports will be given by the Donlon School staff and community committee on assessment of needs, Fran Phillips will discuss a need citizens group formed in the Valley (Parents Educational Rights and Responsibilities Organization), bids will be accepted for cafeteria equipment, and additional reports will be given on summer school plans and staffing projections for 1977-78.

The latter will be presented just prior to resolutions regarding reduction of certificated personnel due to declining enrollment. This could spark a furor as the district, because of declining enrollment, now finds itself in the position of having to reduce or discontinue services, as well as the teaching staff.

Manning of two advisory committees will also be completed— a Local Advisory Committee to work with Dr. Donald Leu in seeking a new superintendent and a panel for utilization of school buildings.

What will you give me for. . .

Take your pick — rims for most any car (pre-1920, that is), license plates, running lamps, sprockets — whatever delights the restorer.

Anything surfaces at a swap meet

PLEASANTON — Most sane people were sleeping off the effects of Saturday night last Sunday morning around 6. But sanity is not a prerequisite for fanatics.

Collectors are fanatics, and most anything collectible was available for sale or swap last Sunday from 6 a.m. to noon at the Pleasanton fairgrounds. The twice - annual meet was sponsored by the Horseless Carriage Club of America.

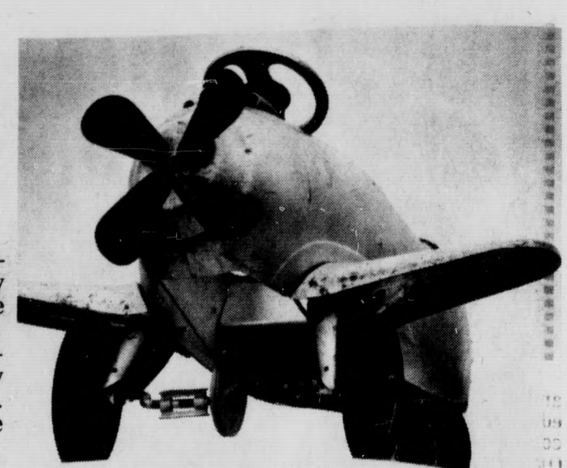
The only rule for entries is no rules at all — anything can be exhibited for sale or show. Items ranged from dolls to model cars, street signs to commercial billboards. And of course, the cars.

A 1937 Ford Phaeton, which most would mercifully call shoddy, was offered for a mere $5,800. And those in-the-know said that's a steal.

Matching 1965 Corvettes, a 1907 Model T chassis (offered at $700), a gold metal-flake 1928 Model A body with fiberglass rumbleseat (traded for a 1964 pickup), and many other cherry old cars.

Of course, a plethora of accessories was available — license plates, taillights, kerosene lamps — the list was endless.

But above all, it was just a chance for the collectors to get out and enjoy their own company.



Admirers thought this pedal-powered plane was cute attached atop a station wagon. When the $375 price was revealed, another word was usually substituted.

Computers
on the loose!

"Knowledge is power and so it tends to be hoarded," is the belief of one computer expert. Not true! One quick look around should convince you that alot of people out there realize a computer's breathtaking scope — not just the folks on Six Million Dollar Man!

"What is even more awesome is the fact that computer hobbyists are sprouting up throughout the valley in quick succession, building and operating what one might at first believe to be mind-boggling equipment. Many, spurred by the organization of a computer club at the Lawrence Livermore Lab, are realizing that people interested in computers don't necessarily have an incomprehensible jargon all their own or even lead peculiar lifestyles.

It might be comforting for the average citizen to attend one of the club's meetings, where he will see for himself that computers are only so frightening as the people who program them. The all-purpose machines come in all shapes and sizes, from inexpensive do-it-yourself kits for the home hobbyists, to the sky-high hardware only governments can afford.

What is exciting many of the hobbyists is the news of a projected home computer that will sell for about $300. Under design by Commodore Business Machines, the computer is expected to make over 30,000 initial sales, which would easily rival programmable games. But who needs a home computer?

That's where a visit to the computer club will again come in handy — after listening to the enthusiastic discussions on the various projects the members have underway, you'll wonder how you've lived this long without one!

Outgoing Jim Spann dispels the notion many outsiders may hold that "computer nuts" are quick to steal another's ideas and are never willing to share the progress they have made. While it's undoubtedly true that they enjoy topping one another's engineering feats, the pleasure seems to come from the realization that what they learn now will eventually help others.

A design associate at the Lab, Jim's major interest in his hobby stems from hoping "it will be an educational tool for my whole family." He has written simple programs (or instructions) that his daughter" who is in the second grade, can use to improve her spelling and arithmetic.

"I want to make it as easy to use as the telephone," says Jim, who is working on a program that may one day keep an inventory of what's in the family freezer, a recipe file and an easy access to the bank statements.

Active club member Gordon Jones, a technician coordinator at the Lab, enjoys using his SOL10 to play such games as Star Trek, chess and even blackjack. Like most computerized games, Star Trek comes on a regular cassette tape and sells for about $9.50. "My two kids can use the computer, too," points out Gordon. "The games take coordination and quick thinking, and the computer is there at home in case they want to learn more about it."

Eric Strohbehn, president-elect of the computer club, is fascinated with the possibility of programming his computer to read. "If I can get it to recognize characters from a text, put the information on a cassette, then interpret the information, it would be great," he says. "I want to take it up to a certain level and see if it can take over."

After putting hundreds of dollars into their hobby, Bob and Bruce Sherry decided to form a business team and make enough money to buy even more hardware! Brothers moved to Livermore from Seattle and are slowly developing customers who are interested in computerized mailing lists and biorhythm charts.

Bob, who builds and operates research apparatus at the Lab, explains that biorhythm charts are similar to astrology and are easily programmed by identifying a birthdate. The computer takes it from there, pin-pointing the intellectual, emotional and physical energies "that everybody has."

You don't have to be a skilled technician or college graduate to understand computers, as high schooler Paul Holbrook demonstrates. Hooked on computers in the seventh grade, Paul is interested in writing a different language for hobbyists to use. Today most programming is done in Basic, a simple language that is powerful enough to do useful things. "Basic is an interpreter and does what you tell it," emphasizes Paul. "I'd like to develop a compiler that will take what you tell it and interpret it into its own language."

Anyone interested in learning more about the computer club may call Eric Strohbehn at 443-1851 (evenings).

Your choice

In searching through anywhere up to a dozen candidates for a local school board post, the voter is faced with a dizzying array of "qualifications" ranging from the traditional label of "dedicated, taxpaying - parent" to the newer claim of "activist representative of teacher and community concerns." The key concern most of us have is to determine which of these talents might return public education to "business as usual."

Our own guess is that we can never return to the old ways of school administration. An annual avalanche of new state legislation, much of it diminishing community control of education while increasing teachers' rights, has compelled school boards to drastically alter their role ... even while stepping up their study of new laws and their communication with teachers, principals and yes, even parents once in a while.

Regrettably, many old - line school board members are unable or unwilling to give that kind of energy to a post which has become a heavy burden, with virtually no compensation and often little thanks.

When you make your final choice on Tuesday, keep that test in mind. And after you've voted, remember that no five people are going to be able to stay on top of public education in your community without a great deal of comment and encouragement from the rest of us.

This newspaper applied that test in preparing its own recommendations for school trustees in the several communities we serve. These suggestions are offered not because they are the only qualified candidates, but rather to provide you with a little guidance, and a great deal of encouragement as you approach your responsibility on Tuesday.

Pleasanton Elementary

The six candidates for Pleasanton Joint School District board present voters with an excellent choice. But they must look at the total board and see how the three they select will work with the present two, with administration, teachers, classified personnel and parents.

Pleasanton needs not only leadership experience but, more importantly, a balance— persons who have a rapport with the citizenry and who offer business expertise.

We are confident that Ron Ott, Earnestine Schneider and present board president Al Dutchover will provide that balance.

Ott has shown himself to be the finest young candidate of all those running for school boards in the Valley. He is knowledgeable, precise and will bring added enthusiasm for the job to the board.

Mrs. Schneider is well acquainted with local education through her long involvement with district and school committees. She has evidenced a strength of character that should be an asset to the board.

Dutchover has served the district well for six years. His experience in district affairs will be needed to balance "newcomers" Ott and Schneider. We also like Dutchover's thought that some contract negotiations in the future should be public.

It should be noted that Dennis Reidy, who was appointed to complete the term of Dr. Guy Clark five months ago, has done a good job and, should he not be successful Tuesday, might consider seeking election two years hence.

Amador Valley Board

With just four candidates vying for three board posts, the choice within the Amador Valley Joint Union High School District is limited.

One incumbent who stands out in that field is Wayne R. Barnes. Consistent, well known throughout the school district, Barnes has been a steadying influence on a board that is always in need of a cool hand.

Two other candidates earn our recommendation. John Delaney is a veteran member of the board who brings considerable knowledge to the complex problems confronting public schools these days.

Frank Damerval is the best of two other challengers, and we can only hope he wastes little time in applying his talents to the board, and to the troubled high school system which serves all of Dublin and Pleasanton.

It's not always who represents us so much as it is how we are represented. The Amador Valley High School District faces a big challenge, but no bigger than the people who run that operation.

Murray Elementary

Residents of Pleasanton's northwest quadrant and Dublin's total populace can be gratified at the offering of five attractive candidates for the Murray Elementary District board of trustees. With just two vacancies to fill on that board, the choice can be a difficult one.

Linda Jeffery is the only incumbent seeking re - election, and she is also the single most capable candidate in the field. She has a solid track record in community service, and she deserves a full term on the Murray Board.

In the balance of that field, Linda Cooley emerges as a proven worker with a good knowedge of public education. She has been tested in a number of other areas of local classroom function, and her contribution is impressive.

We would like to add warm commendation to Donald Biddle, David Foster and Harry Molz, who make up the balance of Murray's ballot. They all appear to be the kind of energetic young adults this Valley needs in public service, and their continued interest in such service would be to their community's long - term benefit.

San Ramon Valley

San Ramon Valley Unified School District voters have an outstanding group of citizens from which to select three board members.

Almost without exception, all 11 have voiced opinions that indicate they are understanding of district problems and know how to go about solving them.

But to maintain continuity, the one incumbent running, Harold Zuckerman, must be reelected. Zuckerman has presented himself as a fair, even-handed trustee who is quite capable of guiding San Ramon through the continued growth years immediately ahead.

The board must also have people attuned to the business, budgeting and personnel operations. In these venues, the electorate would gain a considerable plus by voting for Ronald Harris.

Harris is experienced in these fields, through his position as research and development director for Clorox Co. in Pleasanton.

Bob Schepman and Donald Sledge not only have business expertise but are "doers" in the community. They would also merit your vote.

The Times is pleased to recommend Zuckerman, as well as Ron Harris, Bob Schepman and Don Sledge, for the three positions to be open come Tuesday.

Binding arbitration

Editor, The Times:

The public is being consistently misled regarding binding arbitration and what an arbitrator can do.

The president of the Pleasanton Elementary School Board in his campaign presentations has consistently stated that an arbitrator can come in and change policy thereby taking the school board's power from them. That is absolutely untrue. This cannot happen. The president said an arbitrator could hurt our district by taking funds from the district ear marked for one thing and apply them to teacher's salaries. This is absurd ... the only thing an arbitrator can do is make a decision as to whether or not the expressed terms of the contract have been violated. He or she cannot make or alter policy ... cannot redistribute funds.

Either the president of the board is grossly misinformed or is purposely misleading the public to gain support for a negotiating position. ... We hope the public realizes that the teachers and other employees of the district are not endangering the welfare of the district by requesting binding arbitration.

Letter to Amador board

Messrs. Beazley, Barnes, Decker, Delaney and Dr. Donaldson:

In my years as a teacher I have learned something about human dignity and self respect. I have preached to my students about honesty, fairness and standing up for what they believe in. ... that they show respect for the rights and feelings of others. I have never degraded my students...

But I have been morally degraded. I have been treated as something despicable ... All this while I have not received my step and increment pay. All this while I have continued to ... be a dedicated teacher, to live up to my responsibilities to my students. As a last and final measure I have voted to strike because I am trying to tell you ENOUGH!

Now I have to show a doctor's excuse when I am sick. Now I have to meet a security guard and identify myself in order to work at school on Sundays because you think I will ... vandalize school property.

I hear you must take these steps because of an impending strike. You have also told me you would, of course, pay me my step and increment retroactivity as soon as we signed a contract to your liking.

What have you done to show me you are honest, fair - minded people? ... Why should I believe I don't need binding arbitration ... I went to the courts and you are appealing the decision because you did not like it. That proves to me I DO need binding arbitration. How I can I believe you are bargaining in "good faith" when my negotiating team waits for hours for one - line responses, and you won't even talk to them face to face?

Your recent actions have escalated the conflict. ... Am I being treated fairly and openly and as a human being? By your actions so far I can only conclude that the answer is NO.

SR election coverage

Editor, The Times:

Thank you for the time and space your paper has devoted covering the San Ramon Valley Unified School District board election. With so many candidates in the race, it's difficult for the voter to make a choice. And it's only because of the media that many voters are able to choose from those persons who would represent them best.

I would like also to thank all the other candidates seeking the position of School Board Member. With so many competing for the seat, regardless of who gets the most votes, the community will be the winner. ..

I would like to thank the American Association of University Women, the League of Women Voters, the Valley Action Forum, the Golden Rain Foundation of Rossmoor and the Diablo Valley Savings and Loan for having sponsored the public meetings to allow voters to meet all the candidates. The education of our students determines the future of our community. I urge all of you to get out and vote on March 8.

SRV candidates

Editor, The Times:

I am writing in reference to the article on page three of the March 2 issue of Valley Times, entitled Three S.R. Candidates Endorsed. This article contained the personal endorsement of San Ramon school board candidates by two members of the San Ramon Homeowners Association. I have two objections to the article: 1. It implies endorsement by the San Ramon Homeowners Association; 2. Their letter was printed as an article rather than on the Editorial Page. Such personal endorsements should be limited to Letters to the Editor or paid political advertising.

. . .and editor's bias

Newspaper's politics

Editor, The Times:

We do not understand why the Herald and News is so indignant about the fact that several school board candidates were offered money by the LEA, a so-called "special interest group." The Herald alleged that these candidates were being bought. Is this not tantamount to a confession by the Herald and News that it has "bought" or condoned "buying" elections in the past?

Last June, the Herald and News contributed $3000 and several thousand dollars in free advertising to "buy" the Zone 7 Water District election. This contribution was made through its political arm, the Valley First Committee, a committee that was founded by the Herald's Hayward-based publisher.

Last November the Valley First Committee tried to "buy" the County Supervisor race to the tune of $2000.

For years, the Herald and News has consistently backed candidates who were financed by large sums of money from "special interests groups" — namely, developers and real estate speculators. Why wasn't the Herald and News concerned about those "purchases?"

For once the Herald should address itself to issues rather than mud-slinging. Our community deserves more decent journalism.

In view of the Herald's policy not to print letters with opposing views during election campaigns, we are also sending this letter to the other Valley newspapers.

Joyce and Paul Brown,
Livermore

Newspaper's hypocrisy

Editor, The Times:

A recent Herald/News editorial which criticized two candidates for the Livermore School Board marks the a highlight of hypocrisy. ... one candidate is criticized for accepting a campaign contribution from a teacher group, whereas the other is criticized for not accepting it.

The second hypocrisy is that the Herald's favorite candidates for city councils, Zone 7 and Supervisor consistently accepted substantial contributions from special interests such as land speculators ... no condemnation of those candidates is ever to be found in the Herald.

The third, most disgraceful hypocrisy is that the Herald itself has recently contributed very large sums of money to a front organization (Valley First Committee) for Zone 7 and supervisor candidates...

The fourth hypocrisy is the closing of the Herald's letters column to the public concerning candidates for public office. The Herald's sanctimonious talk about freedom of the press really means its freedom to supress opposing views.

. . .porno cards, trees

Hard core pornography

Editor, The Times:

If you think you've seen hard core pornography, take a walk up the street from your (Livermore) office on Second St. and go to the delicatessen on 167 South P. St. There is a rotating stand with cards for birthdays etc.

We saw a small child looking at these cards for quite a while. When we checked ... the cards when opened show people having intercourse with animals and other people.

There should be a city ordinance which protects young children from obscene literature. It should be out of reach like cigarettes and liquor until the children are grow. We urge you to have an investigative reporter check if it abuses any current city ordinance. If not, the city attorney should be notified and should examine the card stand ... and similar card stands for offending community standards.

Joe and Eloise Alexander
Livermore

(The Times checked out the newstand in question, and we found "birthday cards" similar to those described by the Alexanders. We also learned that "there can be no local ordinances governing pornography in print because the state has pre - empted that field." Even new rulings by the U.S. Supreme Court "must be interpreted by the state and then enforced at the local level by the county's district attorney." A citizen's complaint could be lodged with the DA's office in Oakland for possible action. — Editor)

Council vs. a tree

Editor, The Times:

Contrary to the article entitled "Leondard Loses His Tree, Land" on the front page of The Times, I believe Livermore City Council lost more ... the public's respect. ... the public might well consider recall petitions.

... after meeting the "requirement to respectfully listen to the public" the council did ... their own thing.

Yes, Mayor Tirsell, there is a constitutional provision for government to exercise eminent domain in the public interest, but the public at Monday's meeting didn't ask you to take Mr. Leonard's land in their interest. You have no mandate.

A survey of the entire city ... would undoubtedly find a sizeable majority opposed to the council's endorsement of Lee's plan; just as the $65,009 Arroyo Road Route Study ran into trouble when the affected public learned of it.

Come on, you Livermore citizens, show your stuff and swamp the city phone with calls supporting the rights of "the little guy." One of these days, you may be that little guy ... The number is 447-2100.

My final advice to you, Mayor Tirsell, the Livermore city council and other elected and appointed bodies is, "stop trying to play God" ...

Today's high school student thinks of little else but drugs, sex and drive - in movies, right?

Wrong! If I am to judge by the tone of 25 letters received from one batch of high schoolers in our Valley, then it's teacher strikes, teen jobs and community action which really has today's youngster worried.

I was unable to find out just what motivated those 25 students to suddenly lay their letters on this one editor. (The kids communicate much better than the adults who run our schools.) But I had no difficulty in reading their message.

"The feed stores who are charging too much money for hay for animals are the people who are going to cause a meat shortage," warns Jim Hunter. "Cattle owners will sell all the stock they have and citizens will buy it, and eat it, because prices will drop, and if every cattle rancher does this there will be no more meat." That kid should be advising our president on consumer affairs.

From David Ben Dov, an exchange student from Chile, comes a different kind of wisdom. "In comparing life in Chile with that of the United States, the girls here seem to have more freedom to come and go ... in Chile we are different." Just wait until Chile gets the Equal Rights Amendment for Women, Dave.

Most of the letters are brief, right to the point. Most are also very affirmative.

"I wish you would write a special article on my brother, Steve Sperber. Steve is the champion basketball player as an individual. His family and friends are very proud of him."

Kellie Scott would like to know why the AC - BART buses don't run on weekends, to such exotic places as San Leandro ... James Strobridge sends us a strong plug for "Beep Baseball for the sightless" ... Nancy Hart would like to see a 7 - 11 Store in her neighborhood ... Ron Tolvtvar wonders why high schools don't offer classes in astronomy.

Invite 25 letters "on any subject" from any 25 high schoolers, and most adults would bet on "lots of griping, particularly about the local police." But in our 25 letters ... — and even though all of the students appear to be from Amador High — there is a marvelous cross - section of complaints, compliments and calls for affirmative action.

Just one writer made his point on "police hassling" and that was a mild rebuff aimed at late - hour use of the Pleasanton Aquatic Park.

These young adults were not, however, lacking in critical comment of the community we share. "Lots of people have horses but there isn't anywhere to ride," writes Holly Mills. "We get sick of riding in the same old place."

Ron Nicolson feels there have been changes "some for the better, some for the worse" in the ten years he has lived in this Valley. He sees growth control as "a step in the right direction" but he wants broader public support of school bond issues.

Just four of those 25 letters dealt with the threat of a teachers' strike ... convincing me that no one teacher was trying to mold public opinion by organizing the students into a letter - writing brigade. The kids who did mention "teacher strike" are not even of one mind on that subject.

"If they go on strike we will be missing out on our education and they will have to go to school during the summer," writes Lonnie Keeth. "And they need the summer vacation more than the students," she adds, with considerable wisdom.

Renee Nervo is also worried about the threat of an enforced summer school following any walkout by the teachers this spring while Vickie Jensen believes "it won't be to long of a strike because this has gone on for so long." Teresa Marie Carroll is divided on the subject, supporting teachers' right to strike "because they have some problems the students don't know about" while "the students should not stay in school during the summer" to make up for teaching days lost by such a walkout. Let them strike "during the weekends" Teresa argues, and that way the course of education can move forward on schedule.

Using those 25 letters as a yardstick, we can figure that the major concern of today's high school set is still "jobs!" Dennis Kelley and Mike Kutchera believe finding work for teenagers would keep them occupied, out of trouble, "make youths more responsible and dependable." Steven Connell agrees, noting that a job also makes highschoolers "responsible for money."

Then there are the other letters ... the ones in which a young adult sets forth incisive comment, but then adds in bold print across the bottom of that letter ... "DO NOT USE MY NAME IN YOUR NEWSPAPER." To that extent, some teenagers have already learned their parent's lesson ... talk bravely, but never so loud that people will recognize you.

All of which we conclude with the comment of one Steve Biery: "I am writing this letter to tell you what a fine paper you have. But I think you need more sports instead of ads."

Spoken like any great sports editor, Steve.

Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB — Having read your articles daily to grab any information on gall bladder problems I could, I decided to write you myself.

I'm 118 pounds, female, and 27 years old, married with two children. Last January, eight months after having my last child, I had severe pains in the middle of my chest and through to my back. It lasted several hours. I was taken to the hospital by my husband and had extensive tests, including gall bladder studies. They were all normal.

In April another attack struck me. My doctor ran another test for gall bladder and found bile sand. He said to try a low fat diet, no alcohol, no egg yolks, no pastas. But when asked, he would not give me a written or typed thorough diet.

Is bile sand curable or serious? Could more larger stones have been missed even with the two tests. My grandfather died from having a stone removed 30 years ago after having gangrene set in. How much of a risk is this operation today? Is surgery inevitable in my case? Can this be dissolved or passed?

I would surely appreciate an answer for I've been terrifically upset about this, not knowing if tomorrow I will be facing an operation and besides I've really been starving myself.

DEAR READER — Your doctor was not more specific about a diet because there is a minimal benefit, if any, that you can get from a special diet for your type of problem. Avoiding fried foods, fatty or greasy foods or any foods that you know cause you trouble — if you had enough attacks — would be the general advice commonly given. That description of sand refers to the beginning development of gallstones. Diet does not cure or prevent stones. The stones form from an imbalance between bile salts produced by the liver bile pigments and cholesterol. The bile salts help to keep the cholesterol and bile pigments in solution.

Defects in the intestine that affect reabsorption of bile salts so they can be used again, inflammation of the gall bladder and perhaps factors related to the liver metabolism itself may all be factors in stone formation.

There is a national study using chemicals to dissolve gallstones. I don't know whether they would take you, however, for "sand" unless you have definite stones that could be studied. You can read more about this in The Health Letter.

Q. "WHY DO WATCHES HAVE JEWELS?"

A. SOME WATCHES HAVE BEARINGS MADE OF JEWELS WHICH REDUCE FRICTION BETWEEN THE MOVING PARTS AND MAKE THE WATCH RUN BETTER

When a watch is advertised, the number of jewels it has in its movement is often mentioned as an indication of its quality.

Jewelers are used mentioned as an indication of its quality.

Jewels are used inside watches to make them run better. A watch has many wheels and other moving parts that create friction.

In the best watches tiny pieces of finely ground jewels are placed at the ends of pivots which are constantly moving. They provide a smoother surface than metal, and reduce friction between the moving parts.

Sapphire and ruby are usually used for jeweled bearings because they are very hard and smooth, and do not corrode.

At one time these were genuine jewels, but they are now mostly synthetic (man-made) jewels.

A watch may have from 7 to 23 jewels in the movement. The value of a watch may be based on the number of jewels it has.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone you'll be associating with today has extravagant whims, but a stingy wallet. He'll be looking to you to sponsor him.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In situations where a firm hand is required today you must be staunch. Wishy-washy measures are of no value.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) To thine own self and others be true today. Say what needs to be said, not what sounds the smoothest.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Leave your purse and credit cards home today if you go browsing. You lack your usually shrewd shopping sense.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Anticipating negative results today works against your own interests. It causes you to be timid in situations where you should be assertive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Instead of being visionary today you're likely to be just a daydreamer. Your little flights of fancy lack focus and practicality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be generous today but also be sure that what you give will be put to good use. Don't donate to questionable causes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally everyone knows just where you stand. Today, however, you may pretend to be something you're not.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The time to worry about something is after it has happened. Don't spoil what could be a pleasant day with doubtful thoughts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Avoid involvement in any type of joint venture today with persons you do not have complete faith in. If they don't measure up, pass their action.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Others will find you a little difficult today because they won't know what to do to please you. You won't know what it takes, either.

Jim: "In all systems that use the forcing two bid it is understood that the jump to four of partner's two-spade or two-heart bid shows good trump support while denying any first or second-round controls. Who thought of that bid?"

Oswald: "It was my old partner — life master number one, Dave Bruce. We were the first pair to use the bid, but others adopted it quickly."

Jim: "North really had subminimum values for his bid on account of his 4-3-3-3 distribution. South expected a trifle more when he bid six, but careful play brought the slam home."

Oswald: "He won the spade in his own hand, cashed the ace of diamonds and noted that West dropped the jack. Now he played two more rounds of trumps while making sure to win the last one in dummy before leading dummy's five of diamonds toward his own hand."

Jim: "South would have played his nine if East played low, but East put up the ten. South took his king, led a diamond back to dummy's eight and East's queen. This allowed him to discard a club from dummy on his fifth diamond and ruff his last club to wind up with five trumps, plus a ruff in dummy, plus four diamonds and two clubs for a total of twelve."

EBAL matmen eliminated

SACRAMENTO — They came, they saw, they were conquered.

Yet, judging from uniform third place finishes at the North Coast Section meet two weeks ago, it was no small accomplishment that two of the East Bay Athletic League's four entrants got past the first round of the California Interscholastic Federation wrestling tournament at American River College on the outskirts of the capital city this weekend.

Steve Ramos of San Ramon nearly placed in the 112-pound weight class, but was eliminated one round shy of the consolation semi-final that would have assured him a ribbon. Granada's Brett Nadeau was bumped out of the 120-pound division in Friday's second round.

Livermore's 138-pounder Naish Piazza and Dave Arrighi of the Wolves, wrestling in the 127-pound group, were both defeated in the first round.

A crowd of 4,500 fans, the largest to ever view a wrestling match in California, watched the two-day competition.

Ramos opened with a 13-5 majority decision over Central Coast runner-up Jesse Jimenez of San Jose Andrew Hill, then defeated Greg Davis, the San Diego champion, 6-3.

But against Wasco's Tony Padilla, Ramos seemed to tire and never got started. Padilla, his 6-4 lead threatened as Ramos controlled the late third period action, iced it for good seconds from the end with an escape, a takedown and a withering hammerlock.

But, after a night's sleep, Ramos improved briefly Saturday morning, opening consolation action with a 13-6 victory over Bill Brookens of Costa Mesa, the Southern Section champ.

The match was scoreless through the one-minute opening round, before Ramos exploded for 11 points in the second and easily held off the sloppier Brookens.

Next up was a bout with Fresno's Buff Estrada, a young man faced with the misfortune of meeting finals-bound prep superstar Dan Cuestas of Merced in the quarter-final round.

After an embarrassing 15-4 superior decision loss to Cuestas, last year's 95-pound champ who was competing in his third CIF tourney, Estrada battered Ramos before eliminating him, 10-3.

Although he suffered a bloody nose and injured hand during the match, requiring extensive injury time, Ramos bridged away from two ominous Estrada threats to avoid the stigma of being pinned.

Nadeau, meanwhile, has to be wondering who makes up the rules. OK, it's a single elimination tourney. But figure this out:

Nadeau destroyed Blackford's Gary Haraguch, 18-4, in the first round, before losing to Sac-Joaquin champ Eugene Lyons of Vacaville, 8-5, and was knocked out of the tourney. Meanwhile, McClymonds' David Bell lost a 13-0 opener to Modesto's Russ Miller, who proceeded to win his next match via a pin over Los Angeles champ Mike McMullen.

That "carried" Bell into the consolation round. He didn't show up.

As for the other pair, Piazza was pinned in 2:53 by Simi Valley's Greg Porter and Arrighi was blanked 6-0 by Ted Corona of Gilroy.

San Ramon scored five team points while Granada got two, both light years behind apparent champion Clayton Valley of Concord.

Pitt tops AV for title

HAYWARD — Despite a dramatic come - from - behind effort the Amador Valley Dons fell just short at the first - ever North Coast Section 3-A girls' basketball playoff finals last night here.

The Pittsburg Pirates eked out a 67-61 victory after building up a 42-25 halftime lead. The Pirates, however, like to play them all close as their two previous wins in the tournament were both one-point victories.

In the girls' third-place game Clayton Valley ran all over Moreau 65-43 while Berkeley took third in the boys' bracket by slipping past Novato 86-82.

Amador Valley came back on the fine play of Debbie Oxsen, Jayne Kuhns and Grace Autio. The Dons finally tied the score with 6:38 left in the game on a Kuhns follow shot. The game see-sawed back and fourth for the next three-and-one-half minutes until Pittburg's Tina Glover took over.

Glover wound up with 28 points, scoring seven of those in the last three minutes to keep the hard - charging Dons at bay.

Another important play was made by Rene Motwy who rejected an Amador Valley shot with the score 59-57 Pittsburg. Glover picked up the loose ball, dribbled down court and hit a 20-footer to give the Pirates a four-point lead.

When the Dons failed to score the next time down Veronica Alston followed in a miss to give Pittsburg a 63-57 lead with 1:20 remaining in the contest.

Kuhns had 25 points for the Dons, hitting on 11 of 18 from the field. She and Autio each had 10 rebounds and Oxsen had five steals to go along with her 11 points Sheryle Withoft added 11 rebounds and 16 points.

Alston had a game-high 17 rebounds and 18 points while Rochelle Lawson canned 14 points. Glover contributed 10 assists on top of her 28 markers.

Sparked by reserve guard Donald Sally the Berkeley Yellowjackets overcame an 80-76 deficit in the last three minutes to defeat Novato and take third place honors.

After Marvin DeLoatch of Novato fouled out with a record-tieing 32-point performance, the Hornets tried to stall out the game with a four-point lead. However, Sally came in and stole the ball twice and made his only shot to fired up the Jackets back into the lead.

James Foster led Berkeley with 24 points and Kerry Bland had 16. Terrence McCrary had 14 points and 10 assists for the winners.

Ken Cooney had 20 for Novato and Ron Roberts had 15.

Led by Sandi Satre's 33 points, Clayton Valley rolled to an easy win over a dispirited Moreau team.

"They just weren't trying anything," said one Clayton Valley player after the game as the Mariners just couldn't find the spark after seeing their winning streak snapped Friday night.

However, Colleen Galloway still managed 19 points and 19 rebounds. Lynn Harrison and Aaron Lyons each had 16 for the winners.

Livermore High School's girls' basketball team, which hung on for tight wins after giving up big leads in the their previous two games, broke out to a 59-41 win over Mission San Jose last night to win the first Livermore Girls' Invitational Basketball Tournament at the Pokes' court.

The East Bay Athletic League co-champions broke away from a 27-23 halftime lead, outscoring the Warriors 21-4 in the fourth quarter to romp to an easy win.

Lee Hardiman led a potent Poke running attack and scored 19 points to lead all scorers, while teammate Patti Shirley worked inside for 14 points. Diane Leri and Janice Paxiao worked the backcourt well for Livermore and finished the tournament with fine games.

Carondelet took the third-place game with a tight 60-56 win over Pleasant Hill.

In the Livermore game, the Pokes took advantage of the Warriors' weakness against the run by scoring basket after basket on easy fast breaks. MSJ's only offensive threat was the occasional outside shooting of Ellen O'Connor and Roseanne Roman. The two combined for 22 points.

While the Pokes could hit just 15 of 30 free throws for a 50 percent clip the Warriors died at the line, sinking just three of 15 tosses for a sorry 20 percent.

California's Pat Dulick and P.J. Moore combined for 28 points to lead California to a 32-30 win over Granada to take the consolation crown.

Moore scored 15 points from the inside, while Dulick came through with key ballhandling and drove to the basket well to key the tight victory. Lynn Bousliman led the losers with 10 points.

Despite the two-point margin, Cal never trailed in the ball game. Twice they let seven-point leads

Glads lose again

OAKLAND — It's getting to be a familiar script.

The Chabot College baseball team gets solid pitching but loses because its hitting attack is virtually non-existent.

That happened again yesterday at Laney College here as the hosts edged the Glads 4-3 in the 12th inning to drop Chabot's Golden Gate Conference mark to 0-3.

The losers could get only five hits to spoil a strong eight-inning pitching performance by Mike Bungartz. Bungartz allowed only four hits and one earned run while striking out 11 batters.

Laney took advantage of two Chabot errors in the 12th stanza to take the win.

First baseman Ron Pelby reached second on an error by Dan Pearson who dropped a fly. After Greg Jackson flyed to left field and Dan Patterson struck out Greg Cantrell hit a lopping fly ball to center which John Coo dropped while on the run.

Williams, Ng star for Poke thinclads

FREMONT — Livermore High School track star Cheri Williams is off and running again this season.

She proved that Friday afternoon at American High School here as she won the mile and 440-yard dash, both in impressive fashion.

Cheri ran the mile in 5:20.6 and then came right back to take the 440 in 60.2. She put on a strong finishing kick to take the one lapper.

The meet was a non - scoring affair with the hosts and Samuel Ayer of Milpitas.

All three mile runs (varsity, frosh-soph and girls) were run together and Cheri beat some of the boys.

"I'd like to hit 5:00.0 in the mile by the end of the year," she said.

What about the state title?

Why not," she laughed.

Paula Ng was another outstanding performer for Livermore, taking the long jump with a 18-8 leap and the 110-yard low hurdles in 15.1.

On the varsity level Mike Draper stood out for the Pokes, turning in a 12-foot pole vault attempt for first place.

The Livermore 440-yard relay team also turned in a fine effort with a 44.4 win, upsetting Samuel Ayer.

AV win a stunner

HAYWARD — Amador Valley High School's girls basketball team gained the finals of last night's North Coast Section tournament at Cal-State Hayward here with a stunning 48-46 upset of formally unbeaten Moreau Friday night.

Jayne Kuhns and Sheryl Withoft sparked the Don attack with 16 and 14 points respectively.

Kuhns put the Dons ahead for good with a jump shot with 1:12 remaining in the fourth quarter.

Moreau star Colleen Galloway then committed a charging foul, giving the Dons the ball.

Debbie Oxsen was then fouled by Tami Turco and sank one free throw. Withoft stole the ball and scored the last AV point on a charity shot to ice the victory.

Galloway led the losers with 25 points. However, no other Mariner player scored in double figures.

dwindle down to two, but held on with the help of key baskets by Dulick in the end. The Mats scored their final basket on a Pat Cassidy lay-in at the buzzer.

The Cowgirls edged into last night's final only after surviving a nightmare on Friday night.

The 'Pokes held a commanding 51-38 lead in the fourth quarter on Pleasant Hill, but relaxed on their lead and found themselves with a 55-53 advantage with 15 seconds to go in the game.

Livermore's Diane Leri was fouled, but she failed to hit the first free throw of a one-and-one situation. The Rams' Judy Iten snare the rebound, raced downcourt and drove for a lay-in to tie the game.

Iten, though, was fouled on the play, giving the Rams a chance to take the game with three seconds to go. Iten missed the free throw, though, and the 'Pokes ripped off nine straight points in overtime to take the win, 67-59. Leri had ten rebounds, six steals and 13 points to spur the Livermore five while Patti Shirley poured in 27 points. Debbie Gooch netted 16 points while Iten had 14 for the losers.

In other Friday night games, Michelle Malsam came through with 13 points to send Granada into the consolation final with a 47-21 win over Notre Dame of Belmont, P.J. Moore rifled the nets for 24 points to lead California past College Park, 56-43, while Mission San Jose upset Carondolet, 47-46.

REAL VIEW

Q. We are planning to sell an older home in Hayward that we have owned as a rental for 15 years. The home needs some repairs because of its age. We would like to sell the home in "as is" condition, but we have been told that we must have a termite report first. Is this true? M.S., Castro Valley.

A. Not necessarily. As I have said before, a structural Pest Control Report is not required by law. However, the hang up comes with the lenders. All VA, FHA and 90 per cent loans require such a report as a condition of the loan. In the case of 80 per cent loans, most conventional lenders do not require "termite reports" when the age of the house is less than five years old, unless the appraiser makes a recommendation for a report. In the case of the older home, the decision for the report is left up to the appraiser.

Therefore, you might sell your home to four prospective buyers in an "as is" condition and the lender may later require a report. If you suspect Athat this may occur, have it clearly understood in your contract that the buyer will be responsible for supplying the report, and any cost for repairs will be at his expense.

Q. Recently my husband and I made an offer to buy a home, and since this was our first home we were really excited about getting into it. Now we have been told by our realtor that we will not be able to buy it because the sellers have so many leins against the property that they cannot sell it. Can they just back out of a deal because of that? R.W. Livermore

A. It is not a matter of backing out of the deal, it is simply a matter of not being able to perform. I am sure that your offer to purchase was in writing, and if it was on a standard contract it contained a clause which said something to the effect: Title is to be free of liens, encumbrances, easements, restrictions ... etc. This clause is as much for your protection, as it is for the lender. There isn't a lender around who would make you a loan on a property where liens of record exist. Your contract also contained a clause which said something to the effect that, "this offer was conditioned upon the buyer obtaining a loan, etc.." Since you can't get a loan, and the seller can't deliver clear title, it's a " no deal". Start looking for a new home. Sorry.

Q. (The following question has been edited bv Don because of the nature of the question, the substance of the question remains.) We just sold a home, and feel that we have been cheated by those representing us in the sale. I have been told that the state will reimburse our loses. Is this true? S.T. Dublin.

A. Maybe. First you only think you have been cheated. If you truly have been cheated, and can get a judgement in a court of law, and then cannot collect it from the defendant, then you may be able to qualify for reimbursement from the Real Estate Recovery Fund. The maximum amount recoverable by one individual is $10,000. The aggregate amount collectable is $40,000, if the cause of action occurred after January 1, 1975

CC realtor writes best seller

By BOB NOREK
Business Editor

CONCORD — In today's publishing world, violence, sex and money sells. Check your Best Seller List for the top novels.

A Pleasant Hill realtor/broker has written a book and it is a "best seller." Violence and sex are absent, but it is about money ... how to make money.

Dave Glubetich, owner of Wells Realty, Pleasant Hill, has written "The Monopoly Game." The book, which is a how - to volume on making "big" money with rental homes, is now in its second printing with 28,000 copies in circulation.

The former chamber of commerce manager turned realtor says he wrote the book because he could not find a book that dealt with the information he wanted.

The acutely writing took four months, according to Glubetich. But success was not immediate.

Glubetich recalls that following his first two sales, one buyer requested his money back and the other failed to send the check he promised.

But soon the book became known in the industry and sales began to take off. The second edition is a revision of the original manuscript and the realtor/author plans a third edition in the future.

The book covers, what Glubetich calls his six basic "success factors. These factors are leverage, appreciation, buying, maintaining your property, selling and borrowing other people's money.

Glubetich now is offering seminars based on his book and initial session was a "sell out" at the Concord Inn here.

The 38 - year - old broker is a native of the Bay Area and began his work career as a copy boy at the Oakland Tribune following graduation from San Jose State with a degree in journalism and public relations.

Glubetich says he wanted to be a sportswriter but soon moved into work with the Oakland Junior Chamber of Commerce and then crosed the Berkeley hills to become Pleasant Hill's first chamber manager.

Four years later, Glubetich, who says he was fascinated by the realty industry, became involved in real estate. Soon he qualified as a realtor and then became a broker.

In 1969, Glubetich purchased Wells Realty.

Average new home $78,000 by 1980s

NEW YORK (AP) — If present trends carry into the 1980s, the average cost of a new home will be $78,000 "and only the most affluent groups would be able to afford them," says a report issued Thursday.

Only 27 per cent of American families can afford the 1976 median new-home price of $44,200, according to the report , "The Nation's Housing Needs, 1975 to 1985," done by the MIT-Harvard Joint Center for Urban Studies.

The report said the trend that could produce an average price of $78,000 for new homes in the 1980s was apparent. In 1970, it said, nearly 47 per cent of American families could afford the median new-home price of $23,400.

The increase in the new-home sales price has been nearly 90 per cent between 1970 and 1976, or double the rise in median family income, which grew 47 per cent from $9,867 to $14,500 in the same period.

Monthly ownership costs, including utility costs, property taxes, insurance and mainetanance, grew even faster, rising 102.5 per cent in the six year period, the report said.

It found that among 12.8 million families, high rents and other spiraling costs are replacing overcrowding or physically inadequate housing as the chief problem.

The main culprits for the rise in new housing prices have been inflation, higher construction and material costs, higher land costs, and larger interest charges for both the builder and home buyer.

Other factors that will shape future national housing needs were outlined by the two MIT professors who wrote the report, Bernard J. Frieden and Arthur P. Solomon:

— Migration is occurring not only from the North to the South, but from metropolitan areas to the country. Thus many cities and even suburbs could end up with a housing surplus while small cities and towns may face substantial housing shortages.

Over all, Solomon told reporters that "we are building 300,000 to 400,000 units below the necessary" need to meet current household growth and replace obsolete housing.

— Growth in the number and size of households will slow down in the next decade as the effects of the post-war baby boom subsides.

"We will have additional space in existing housing. The cost of young and old people living on their own will continue up because young families have put pressure on rents. These factors point to more use of existing homes and a slow down of new household growth," Solomon said.

Demand in the 1980s should increase, however, for modest - sized housing for young families expected to raise fewer children.

The report did not propose specific changes in national policy, and Frieden said, "No single strategy will go very far in solving the problems."

However, he suggested that since one of the worst problems was families' inability to meet rising housing costs, some sort of "incomes policy," possibly including cash grants to home buyers, might be necessary.

Another look at airport

LIVERMORE — The airport advisory committee meets tomorrow noon to answer questions posed by city council last week when council members reviewed the airport master plan.

Council delayed further consideration of the master plan until more input was given by the city finance department, city manager and airport committee.

The list of questions dealt with computations of financial projections, ommission of a financial plan, need for commitments to land acquisitions for future development on the south side of the airport, consideration of scheduled airlines to travel between Los Angeles and Livermore, and use of the airport for emergency alternate use in case of earthquake damage to the land fill base of most Bay Area airports.

In other agenda items, the committee will:

— consider a letter scheduled to go to individuals and organizations interested in obtaining special navigational aid (NAVAIDS) equipment for the airport to request support from the Federal Aviation Administration.

The letter, from airport committee chairman John Kerekes, will urge people to write to congressional representatives, listing the type of NAVAID desired.

— hear a report that preapplications have been accepted by FAA for federal funding of the East Clear Zone and South Approach Protection land acquisitions.

The notification of eligibility for the Airport Development Aid Program (ADAP) will be discussed.

— review a map showing alternative locations for future hangars.

— discuss complaints of debris on the leased industrial airport sites.

— receive the preliminary 1977-78 budget for the airport. Detailed discussion is expected during the April meeting.

— consider an invitation to join the League of American Airports. A subgroup in the League includes representatives of "reliever airports."

— consider approval for the 1977 Jaycee Air Show.

Arbor Day doctors

LIVERMORE — Is your spruce sickly? Bonsai tree feeling a little low? Perhaps a punchy Ponderosa Pine?

A new device intended to make on-the-spot checks of trees to determine their health has been developed by four Lawrence Livermore Laboratory employes.

Developed as a portable unit to make tests of trees isolated by rough terrain, the "porometer" reads a plant's vital signs by analyzing a leaf or needle.

The porometer contains a temperature - controlled chamber that fits over any size leaf to make sensitive measurements of carbon uptake and water vapor output. These indicate the rate of photosynthesis (food production) and transpiration (water loss) in the plant.

The device was designed primarily to test trees in remote areas suspected of suffering from smog poisoning. LLL researchers are currently checking trees in the San Bernadino Forest near Los Angeles to see if smog is affecting forest production there.

The porometer was developed by a group of four researchers in the Laboratory's Environmental Sciences Division. They are Dr. Patrick I. Coyne, a plant physiologist, Dr. Gail E. Bingham, a bio-meteorologist, Randall Kennedy, electronics technician, and Milton Bell, a mechanical technician.

Lawrence Lab physiologist Dr. Patrick I. Coyne tests the effect of smog damage on a Ponderosa Pine with a device he helped invent.

Girl Scouts across the Valley and around the world commence a week-long celebration of the 64th birthday of scouting today, with a World Day of Prayer for their native land.

To mark Girl Scout Sunday, junior troop 206 will attend Holy Cross Lutheran Church of Livermore which sponsors the group, as hundreds of girls don scout uniforms for worship services in the Valley.

Ten troops will plant trees and shrubs donated by local nurseries on Arbor Day, March 7.

A birthday party on a Mexican theme is planned by junior troop 1360 in Dublin for Brownie troop 830, as dozens of troops light candles in honor of the anniversary.

Throughout the week, special window displays will be in evidence. Junior troop 1719 will be Featured in Mary D's store in Dublin, while junior troop 1719 occupies the window at Hansen's in Livermore.

To cap off the celebration, it has been announced that cadette troop 845 of Livermore has been selected to represent the San Francisco Bay Girl Scout Council at a camp at National Center, Wyo., through funds from the DeWitt Wallace Foundation.

Fire chiefs form plans on drought

SAN RAMON — The dehydrated condition of the Valley has spurred the Twin Valley Fire Chiefs Association into examining existing and projected fire conditions and appointing a committee to review ways to update current fire protection procedures.

The chiefs met last Thursday at the Valley Community Services District fire station number two in San Ramon.

Several fire chiefs said present conditions were not abnormal for this time of year but could become so if we didn't get any significant rainfall during the remainder of the year.

With the possibility of increased fire hazards becoming a reality, the newly appointed committee was asked to develop a broader resource list of available auxiliary water sources; primarily, water tankers from governmental agencies and private owners.

It was pointed out that one of the most effective means of providing fire protection on a larger scale was through a currently operating Mutual Aid Agreement. This assistance is given to all participating agencies automatically on a predetermined response plan.

In order to conserve water that could be needed for more urgent reasons connected with fire fighting, the Twin Valley Fire Chiefs have adopted the following policy recommendations for all member agencies: "1. Water usage will be limited to only necessary activities to continue to provide adequate fire protection.

a. Training activities that require water usage will be coordinated to provide maximum effectiveness with minimum water usage and develop uniformity of operations.

b. Only necessary water flow testing of new fire hydrant installations or modifications of the water system will be conducted to assure system and hydrant operation. Routine annual flushing will be suspended this year.

c. Daily use of water for miscellaneous activities such as hosing off ramps, sidewalks or other areas around fire stations has been suspended. Other necessary uses of water will be held to an absolute minimum."

Conservation measures for households will be adopted by firemen staying at the station, according to the recommendation.

The chiefs advised that everyone practice fire safety awareness; especially during this period of drought.
